Vanderbilt is pleased to inform you that our NGCR range of card readers have successfully passed the FCC and UL certification process. With the support of the certification, Vanderbilt is able to provide peace of mind to system integrators and end-users on the North American market.

FCC is a certification mark employed on electronic products manufactured or sold in the United States which certifies that the electromagnetic interference from the device is under limits approved by the Federal Communications Commission. UL stands for Underwriter Laboratories, a third-party certification company that is the leading nationally recognized safety testing authority in the U.S.
